President And Leaders Of Political Parties Meet This Afternoon

DISCUSS PROGRAM FOR NATION'S POLICY

Conference Is Preparatory To Special Session Of Congress On Thursday

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—This afternoon in his White House office President Roosevelt will undertake his most momentous job of salesmanship when he assembles national leaders of both major parties to appeal for national unity in meeting national problems arising from the European war.

Twenty-four hours later—at 2 p. m. EST tomorrow—the president will appear before the extraordinary session of congress he assembled and ask for repeal of what he terms the "so-called neutrality act."

Today, however, the chief executive was outlining the administration's case to such men as former Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas and Colonel Frank Knox, Republican standard-bearer in 1936, Vice President Garner and house and senate floor leaders, both Republican and Democratic.

To Review Information

Flanked by Secretary of State Hull, it was expected that at 3 p. m. EST Mr. Roosevelt would review in detail highly confidential information from American diplomatic sources upon which he bases his insistence that the current arms

R. R. Potter, formerly connected with the Y. M. C. A. in this city and a native of New Castle, now living in Hollidaysburg, Pa., while here on a visit yesterday, told Pa New how he nearly won $1,000 on a 500 word story of two New Castle people. A magazine had offered that amount for the best definition of success. Potter started out by defining it as not necessarily achieving your aim, but in making an honest effort to that end. He followed this with the story of a ditch-digger and washwoman, whom he knew in New Castle, and who are known to hundreds of citizens. He showed, in few words, how they both made successes in their lowly vocations. He did not win the prize, but he received a letter from the magazine editor, saying that out of 4,500 replies, his story was among thirteen standing highest on the list. The moral is plain: Success is not limited to great achievements.

Pa New observes that corn mush, none up packages, has again made its appearance in local markets. This is one of the first indications of fall. People don't eat much mush in summer, as it is considered too heating, but when the days are nights begin to get cool, and there is an inward urge for something greasy, there isn't anything that seems to touch the spot better than a skillet of fried mush, done crisp and brown, and covered over with some maple molasses. Yum, Yum.

Landon Says People Convinced That U. S. Can Keep Out Of War

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The American people demand that Congress remain in continuous session to serve as a watch-dog in maintaining this nation's neutrality in the European war, Alf M. Landon, 1936 G. O. P. presidential nominee, declared today on arriving to attend President Roosevelt's peace conference.

Landon also asserted the people now are convinced the United States can remain out of the war in Europe.

In demanding that Congress remain in session, Landon was asked whether this sentiment reflected a lack of public confidence in the administration's handling of foreign affairs. He replied:

"There is a very definite feeling throughout the country that Congress should remain in session. There is more confidence in the

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 20.—Fighting back desperately in a last-ditch struggle that has made Warsaw the new "Madrid" of Europe, the beleaguered Polish capital today repelled a series of smashing German attacks from all sides.

Radio reports of the fighting received in Budapest indicated that Warsaw is now completely surrounded, but evidently is making good its pledge to fight to the last man.

Today was the thirteenth day of the siege of Warsaw, which has defied all ultimatums to surrender and is now fighting off the heaviest German assaults yet directed against the city.

Both tanks and infantry participated in the German attempts to take over the city and thus carry the Nazi conquest of Poland forward another step.

Mayor Starzynski related how Archbishop Gall visited Warsaw's demolished churches and wept bitterly at the sight, exclaiming:

It was reported that 100 Warsaw churches have been completely or partly demolished by the guns and aerial bombs shattering the city in the German drive to force a surrender.

In his broadcast Starzynski said: "Chancellor Hitler alleged that no town has been bombarded except Warsaw. We are able to state that more than 100 towns and villages have been devastated by air raids."

PARIS, Sept. 20.—France's council of ministers was summoned together today by President Albert Lebrun to ratify what, according to semi-official sources, was a rejection of the terms of Chancellor Hitler's "pitiful speech", and a new declaration of Franco-British determination to carry on.

In more sanguinary fashion the resolution to prosecute the war was shown on the Saarland front, where French artillery reportedly repulsed new German counter-attacks in spite of the more formidable size of a reinforced Reich army.

"Night Is Calm On Front"

This morning's French communiqué said "the night was calm on the whole front. Enemy artillery was active east of Blies."

France's attitude towards Hitler's Danzig address and the march of Soviet troops into eastern Poland was carried in a semi-official statement which promptly told Berlin:

"After the successes which he owes to Soviet treason, Hitler has just made a pitiful speech directed towards German internal public consumption..."

"He only repeated with increased vulgarity the usual propaganda there was nothing lacking, neither lies concerning the atrocities of aggression in Poland, nor the traditional maneuver of trying to separate France and Britain; nor were there lacking attempts at intimidation and insults to the enemy. As in all Hitler's speeches, lies were abundant..."

War developments today:

BERLIN—Polish resistance has ceased on all fronts, except northwest of Lemberg (Lwow), where Polish forces have been reinforced, a military bulletin said. Warsaw was not mentioned. With the battle of Kutno, west of Warsaw, ended, 105,000 prisoners were reported taken. Germans took the naval port at Gdynia, ending fighting there.

LONDON—Parliament meets today to hear a statement by Prime Minister Chamberlain on the effects of Russia's invasion of Poland. Chancellor Hitler's statements at Danzig were dismissed as "mis-statements," with the implication that Britain would go on fighting in spite of the conquest of Poland.

PARIS—France took a parallel attitude to Britain's rejecting Hitler's "traditional maneuver of trying to separate France and Britain," as the council of ministers was called together. A communiqué announced: "The night was calm on the whole front. Enemy artillery was active east of Blies." An earlier German counter-attack in the Blies sector was reported repulsed by French artillery with heavy German losses.

Repeat of the neutrality law will be Mr. Roosevelt's only recommendation in tomorrow's extraordinary message he indicated. In recent press conferences the president suggested that a simple return to the principles of international law would satisfy the administration. Last session, he and Secretary Hull advocated enactment of a cash-and-carry rule for dealing with belligerents but it now appeared they believe they can operate just as effectively by executive order under international law.

The president denied that he had further plans at this time to increase the military establishment to full peace-time strength, as proposed by Gen. John J. Pershing. What the future holds, he added, however, is in the lap of the gods.

In the light of European developments, Mr. Roosevelt said the government was making a continuing survey of national defense needs.

Democrats—Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, House Majority Leader Rayburn, Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Pittman, House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Blacon, Assistant Senate Majority Leader Minton and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, administration spokesmen in the senate.

As we walk along the streets these fine mornings we meet hundreds of children on their way to school, and we are prone to imagine that there are just as many children now in proportion to population, as ever, but statistics do not confirm this belief. When our first census was taken, there were more children than adults, the proportion being ten children to eight adults. Today there are only ten children for every twenty adults. This shift in the makeup of our population makes it increasingly hard for young people starting their careers, since there are more older people holding down the jobs.

The division of Poland already has caused a split between German Nazi leaders and many leading generals, according to neutral quarters. Those troops which Germany hoped could be released from Poland to fight on the French front will be reduced greatly in number, these observers asserted.

Germany Seeks To Prevent Government Of Poland Moving

Exerts Pressure On Rumania To Keep Polish Officials In That Country

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BUCHAREST, Sept. 20.—As a result of strong pressure from Nazi Germany, Rumania will forbid the refugee Polish government to leave this country and establish a temporary capital in France as planned, this correspondent learned today.

The Rumanians, however, are actually anxious that the Poles depart as soon as possible, and with this in view are attempting to arrange some sort of a compromise in Berlin.

Authoritative circles made clear that Germany is definitely opposed to creation of a Polish rump government in France or England and for this reason has exerted heavy pressure on Bucharest to keep the shattered remnants of the Warsaw regime within the boundaries of Rumania.

FOREIGN TRADE PROBLEMS

SO greatly has the new European war disturbed normal relations between the countries that our trade agreements with various nations already seem slightly antique. Just what is going to happen to international trade, remains to be seen. Of course, Secretary of State Hull, the father of reducing protection by mutual trade agreements, says that he is not discouraged, yet even he seems to be of the opinion that at present the most which can be done is to salvage some of the foundation for future peace-time building.

Over in Europe the fight for markets and supplies is only secondary in savageness to the fight on the field of battle. The small neutral nations of Southeastern Europe are already being tempted by British gold on the one hand and threatened with German retaliation on the other, if they sell to one of the conflicting sides. Just what this means at this time nobody can foretell, yet if the war continues long, more nations will probably be drawn into the struggle because their supplies of raw materials are needed.

But, it may well be asked, what about the United States? After all, we are more interested in our own country than those across the seas. Already prices of grains and other commodities over here are rising. Does this mean a return to prosperity of the American farmers, or does it presage a boom, to be followed by a collapse, like the one in 1921 from which we have not yet recovered? Only the future can foretell.

Now is the best time on earth for the United States to remain neutral and build up its own defense, economic as well as military. Let us prepare to look after our own markets. The war will not last forever. There is no assurance that it will last three years. Sooner or later peace will come again and when that time arrives, foreign nations are going to make a concerted attack on our markets because they will represent about the only markets worth having.

When that time comes we want to be prepared to look after Uncle Sam's producers first, in the mill and on the farm. And speaking of farms, trade treaties like the one proposed with Argentina are going to make us especially susceptible to foreign competition when the armies in Europe stop fighting. Now is the time to look forward as to what may happen later.

TENNIS LOSES INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR

The champions of Wimbledon become the champions at Forest Hills. In the same decisive manner in which they ran away with the British tennis honors, Bobby Riggs and Alice Marble have won the national singles crowns for this year. Because of his erratic playing in some earlier tournaments and his failure to capture two singles in the Davis Cup matches, young Riggs can not yet be graded with his brilliant predecessor, Don Budge. But of Miss Marble's unrivaled claim to top honors in the woman's field of world tennis there can be no question.

Because amateur tennis has been flavored with an international tang, and because international representation in the championships is unlikely for some time because of war conditions, the close of the Forest Hills contest opened up an era of uncertainty in tennis. When again there will be substantial international interest in Forest Hills and Wimbledon, when, indeed, there will be held challenge matches for the Davis Cup, none may foretell.

Meanwhile the American sports public can look ahead, undisturbed by foreign complications, to the baseball World Series and the opening games of the football season.

OUR "OLD" GOVERNMENT

In speaking of Europe and its present horrible outbreak of war we are apt to refer to it as the "old" world. Old, indeed, it is, in the light of past bloodshed and political intrigue, but that does not tell the whole story. As Nicholas Murray Butler said, in a recent address to the Parrish Art Institute, Southampton, Long Island:

"It is not generally realized that the government of these United States, which came formally into existence a century and a half ago, is now the oldest of all the governments existing in the world. It is the only one which has not been changed in essential principles or revolutionized during the past century and a half. This fact is, of itself, a tribute to the wisdom and the foresight of those whom we so gladly call the Founding Fathers. On the continent of Europe every government which has not been wholly made over since the World War, came into being in its present form only after the Napoleonic Wars, or, as in the case of France, after the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-1871. The government of Great Britain, responding to the pressure of the steady growing liberal movement during the 18th and 19th centuries, was substantially changed both as to its center of gravity and as to its governmental procedure following the Reform Bill of 1832, the Parliamentary Representation Act of 1867 and the Parliament Act of 1911. The last-named act gave the relations between the House of Commons and the House of Lords their present form. Still later, in 1931, the Statute of Westminster, an act of the greatest importance in the history of constitutional government and public law, brought into existence the British Commonwealth of Nations as now constituted. This act applied the federal principle to legislatively independent members of a great empire scattered all around the world. The governments of the Central American and South American peoples are all younger than the government of the United States. The governments on the continents of Africa and of Asia have been and still are in a constant state of flux, and it remains to be seen what their more permanent form is to be."

Undoubtedly in its century and a half of existence American constitutional government has proved that it is more than an experiment. We want to assure the continuance of that free government. The best way to do so is to avoid the wars of Europe, one of which, twenty-five years ago, came near to wrecking the governments of most of the nations involved in it.

Tons of paper are dumped on civilian Germany by British fliers—the first thing of this sort since the explorer returned to Broadway with news that the South Pole was still there.

The Parent Problem

POLICE PALS OF DELINQUENTS

Juvenile delinquency can be reduced. Recent success in this direction has been reported for Cleveland, O., where the rate of delinquency was cut 62 per cent.

Cleveland's officials attacked the problem of delinquency in an unusual way, according to a report given by Elliot Ness, Cleveland Director of Public Safety, before a group of educators recently. As a first step leaders of 45 boys' gangs which had previously engaged in thefts, hold-ups and other marauding, were prevailed upon to attend a dinner given by the police department. There the young hoodlums were asked why they thought their districts had a delinquency rate three times as high as the rest of the city.

The boys said they lacked adequate places to spend their spare-time in playing such as swimming pools, baseball diamonds, tennis courts and gymnasiums. Also, they wanted a little spending money and some adventure.

"We told them we would do all in our power to aid them," Mr. Ness said. "Many meetings were held subsequent to the first and it became a mark of great prestige to be invited to meetings of the gang leaders."

Get Them Jobs

"We used our influence in getting many of the gang leaders jobs. About 200 boys were placed through the influence of the police department, in industries throughout the city. Almost without exception they made good."

Mr. Ness reported that the boys formed a "South Side Improvement Club" which helped secure additional night school and recreational facilities. The club passed a rule that members must keep saving accounts so they would not be tempted to get spending money through robbery and theft during periods of unemployment. Now these gang leaders sponsor Boy Scout troops, and a camp for young boys has been established by the police and the Rotary club. Police stations have been turned over to some of these boys for their organization and recreation centers.

Such efforts at furthering good citizenship in an area once so high in juvenile delinquency are certainly to be applauded. From this achievement we ought to see how much greater permanent good might be accomplished by providing similar means of character building for younger children in connection with the homes, by making the community a fitter place for children to grow up in, and by leading parents of young children everywhere to rear their children to have a high regard for the rights of others.

And we must remember, that many of the boy gang leaders are merely emulating more privileged youths who do not have too much respect for the law but who may have ways of escaping justice through home influence. Indirectly, the parents of children in the better neighborhoods are responsible for the conduct of children in the less privileged areas, since the children of the better neighborhoods are invariably the models of the community.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

IT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

Perhaps the years since 1930; in other words, the '30's, will be known as the years of the Great World Depression, but it is rather absurd to talk about Depression, to say the least, it is very pessimistic. There have been other Depressions in these United States and in this world of ours where rich men became poor and the poor became poorer, and it was honestly believed that there was no help in us.

You don't have to go back any further than 1873 for a gorgeous Depression in these United States. Specie payments were suspended and we had from 1873 to 1878, the age known as the "Age of Shin Plasters." About the only coins ever seen were pennies, two-cent pieces and three-cent pieces. Money ranging from five cents up was represented by bills issued by the United States Treasury, or fractional parts of dollars. There were no dimes, quarters, one-half dollars or dollars. There was no gold or silver floating around the country whatsoever. It was not until 1878 that specie payments were resumed. We have no final day, but we have plenty of silver coins in circulation, so from that standpoint the present Era is not as bad as that.

Then we had the 1893, the 1903, the 1907 and the 1913 Depressions. If the World War had not started in 1914, it was predicted that this country was going to see the worst financial panic which it has ever seen. While the War cost a great deal of money and a great many lives, it at least postponed the evil financial day for a generation.

Back in 1913 a New York Banker, who had watched the financial tides ebb and flow for fifty-four years said:

"Wall Street never learns to take the lean with the fat. Brokers talk of present dull times as though such were something entirely new and altogether beyond the normal run of events. Why I remember the hard times of 1873, when everyone thought that in a few months grass would grow in Wall Street. It is a fact that there were members of the New York Stock Exchange who, for a while, took up book canvassing to keep body and soul together. We saw hard times again in 1893, in 1903 and 1907. There seems to be something ominous in the numeral 3, and so we should perhaps rejoice that 1913 is nearly gone."

This Banker seems to have had a superstitious fear of "3's". He never lived to see the '30's.

Instead of buying a large overstuffed divan and two large chairs, which will dwarf your room, select two small upholstered chairs and a divan built along small lines. THE WRETCH
Some fellows can get away with anything. There's one we know quite well.

Morals don't mean a thing to him. He doesn't care what the neighbors think or say. He has no regard for truth or law. The duties of the so-called good citizen are the bunk so far as he is concerned. He doesn't vote either at the primaries or elections. He never thinks of paying a bill.

We saw him take a taxi ride without giving the driver a pleasant look.

He won't work a lick; he won't go to church; he can't play golf, or dance, or sing, or fool around with musical instruments or the radio. He'd let the house burn down before he'd turn in the fire alarm.

The telephone can ring itself weak and he won't give it a tumble.

But we'll say this for him. He comes of a good family—he's our new grandson.—J. F.

A postcard writer asks us if we thought a lot of the prisoners who tried to get out of jail recently did so for the purpose of getting out to vote. Search us. They may want to go to war.

Americanism: Praying for peace and building great defenses save our country; tolerating warring groups, disloyal factions, gimme chisellers and servile politicians who do more harm than war.

We can't build Utopia while historians say, "Alexander the Great" instead of "Alexander, the bandit looter and murderer."

A good way to keep prices of necessities down is to buy as little of them as possible. Consumers hoarding is what causes the profiteers to get busy.

Over in Germany people are not being arrested now for praying. However, politics in sermons are excluded. In this country politics and war subjects are great in the pulpits.

President Aims To Wipe Out Party Lines
Seeks To Avoid Further Partisan Fights
Says Brain Trust No Longer In Existence

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

IT'S TOO SOON to guess how successful President Roosevelt will be in his move to wipe out party lines in the face of the present "national emergency"—or "limited emergency." Public opinion hasn't had time to react convincingly. The press has barely begun to express itself. Professional radio broadcasters editorialize very little; they try to state facts but not to draw conclusions. Senators and representatives haven't started sounding off noticeably.

Probably the president himself is a bit uncertain. If he'd felt confident that party lines would be erased the general surmise is that he'd have called congress into special sessions a good deal sooner. But he naturally didn't want the lawmakers on his hands until satisfied that they wouldn't immediately fall to quarreling between themselves and with him, as was the case when they last adjourned. That couldn't look like non-partisan unity.

Missionary Work

What he evidently felt that he needed was to do some missionary work during a short interval. His elevation of three big bureau heads virtually to cabinet rank was a move in this direction. So was the announcement by his secretary, Stephen T. Early, that the "brain trust" (Steve didn't use those particular two words, but everybody knew what he meant) had gone "out the window." Manifestly this was a hint at an olive branch to Republicans and conservative Democrats. Parenthetically, one may wonder if it wasn't calculated to antagonize the New Dealers, but the White House tenant evidently took that chance.

Another olive branch was the presidential cancellation of a speech F. D. was to have made before the Democratic Women of the United States, on the ground that "this is no time for partisanship, but for unity and patriotism."

Yet Not So Non-Partisan

Newspapers, F. D.'s official personal hasn't been made over on a particularly non-partisan basis. He left some "brain trusters" out of it, to be sure, but he didn't put any conspicuous anti-"brain trusters" into it—just "brain trusters" who haven't been outstandingly advertised as such.

Various statesmen are referred to, who may be hard to convert to Rooseveltian policies—Senator Nye, the author of our present neutrality law, Senator Borah, Senator Hiram W. Johnson (a Republican) and Senator Clark of Missouri (Democratic).

If President Roosevelt's going to be non-partisan, how's he going to get their type of non-partisanship? Well, maybe he can out-vote 'em; maybe he can't.

Third Term Issue

Supposing that F. D. can abolish bi-partisanship temporarily; it's the consensus in Washington that he's due for a third term.

Some commentators think that he wants it. Others think that it's a side issue with him—that all he wants is to turn the future over to somebody else of the right sort.

It all depends on how the war wags along.

Nobody believes he can abolish bi-partisanship permanently. But plenty of folk think he can establish a temporary semi-dictatorship.

If so, will he STAY temporary? Uni-partisanship and multipletisms are hard to upset except by internal strife—as see Mexico and elsewhere in Latin America.

We don't want it here. Third term? Too much!

These remarks, if war hustles are liable to be hit by a censorship. Then what's going to happen?

FORCE AND CHANCE

Said he: "This only I believe: All things have come by chance. At birth an impulse men receive. By which they march and dance. The stars and planets hold their course. Not by intelligence, but force."

And hearing this I looked about. To find a force so true. That it could blow, day in and out. The sunrise that we view. But all the works of force I found. With blackened ruins strewn the ground.

And then I followed chance to learn. If she could throw the dice. Getting from cubbs that spin and turn.

The perfect total twice. But chance went tumbling to defeat. When asked her triumphs to repeat.

Nothing in force can I admire. To chance my heart is cold. Something more glorious I desire. My love and faith to hold. To me existence is a sign. Of an intelligence divine.

The Third-Term Schemers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. IT is a little unfortunate that on the threshold of the special session of Congress one of Mr. Roosevelt's strongest newspaper supporters—the Daily News of New York—should think it opportune to proclaim that the war will compel the Democratic convention to "draft" Mr. Roosevelt for a third term and makes his election certain. When it clashes with the "don't swap horses while crossing a stream" adage, it is stated the American anti-third-term tradition will crumble.

THIS is unfortunate because it fits in with, supplements and encourages the activities of certain politicians of the "inner circle", falsely reported relegated to the rear, and creates a feeling that one would like to see absent during a period when the foreign policy of the nation is of such vital importance. It is a little difficult to take Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for any abandonment of partisanship patiently when it is so completely obvious that intimate friends, and supporters see in the war an opportunity to revive the soggy third-term movement, which, with what seemed his approval, they had been pushing for weeks but which had practically petered out as hostile sentiment in the country, and particularly in the Democratic party, had become plain.

INDIVIDUALS close to the President, who were managing the third-term movement and had become deeply discouraged over its failure to prosper, are reported as excitedly counting upon the European war giving it new life and strength. Their idea is that with Mr. Roosevelt appealing for an adjournment of politics and personally preserving a noble nonpartisan attitude, political activity upon the part of other Democrats mentioned for the Presidency can be effectively smothered, and the third-term ideal gradually eased into the public mind as inevitable. That such is the hope has been made too clear to dispute. It is not calculated to promote the sort of cooperation and national unity in foreign affairs that most people would like to see.

CERTAINLY it makes it more difficult for those anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans, in Congress and out, who want to support the Roosevelt-Hull effort to raise the arms embargo. To the distrust of Mr. Roosevelt's judgement and the feeling that he is not a man to be given automatic power in a time of national danger there is now the added suspicion, engendered by themselves, that the extreme New Deal politicians are trying to utilize the war situation to keep him in the White House and themselves in power. It seems unlikely that Mr. Roosevelt will continue to maintain his high-minded attitude of aloofness while his friends are thus steaming up the third-term movement, publicly insisting that the war has made his renomination and reelection unavoidable.

THE truth is that the opposition to a Roosevelt third-term is just as intense today as it was before war broke out. The people who distrust Mr. Roosevelt's judgement and opposed his domestic policies have not been changed by the war. There is no reason they should be. On the contrary, there is every reason why those who were convinced that he was an unsafe and unbalanced leader in a period of peace should feel even more distrust for his leadership in a time of war. That does not in any way prevent them from supporting his entirely sound neutrality proposals, nor in wanting to give a display of national unity in foreign affairs. However, the prospects of this being achieved are certainly diminished by the undiscouraged efforts to use the war as the instrument to force a third term down the throats of reluctant people.

THE effort is not likely to succeed. The "don't-swap-horses" theory does not hold water. As has been before stated, it depends altogether upon the horse and on the stream. There does not exist now and, whether we are war ourselves or not, there will not exist next year, any real reason why we should suspend our normal political processes, scrap the oldest and most cherished American political tradition and accept for President a third term a man whose policies have created a national mess of such unprecedented proportions that it will take a generation and more to straighten up.

THERE is little more chance of a third term now than before, but the third terms are desperately trying to improve that chance. It has been suggested to Mr. Roosevelt that he would greatly promote the national interests as well as enhance his own reputation if he would squelch these ardent friends by a flat and final declaration that he will not accept nomination or permit himself to be "drafted". Unquestionably that would promote the nonpartisan spirit and gain support for his foreign policy. But, while he cannot help know of these third-term proclamations, he gives no sign of disapproval. It is a great pity.

Housewives Get Protest Answer

In a letter received Tuesday by Mrs. C. Russell Brenner, president of the Housewives' league, the protest of that organization against foodstuffs price increases is answered. The letter is from Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney-general, and answers a telegram to the president.

In his reply Mr. Arnold states that at the present time there is no specific act which curbs price profiteering but that a program is being formulated designed to curb profiteering. The department extended an invitation to Mrs. Brenner and the league to cooperate in the movement and submit any evidences of profiteering which come under their notice.

Bonus To Apply On War Debts Is Nyes Suggestion

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A surprising proposal for a "war debt bonus" of from 20 to 25 per cent on every wartime British or French purchase in the United States was made today by Senator Nye (R) North Dakota.

Nye's suggestion anticipated a possible administration victory in President Roosevelt's impending fight in the special session of congress to repeal the existing neutrality act's ban on sales of American munitions to warring nations.

"If a law is enacted that will permit sales of munitions," said Nye, "every last order should carry a 20-25 per cent billing bonus to apply on debts due the United States for the last war."

The senator, who is preparing statistical data to support his fight against embargo repeal, said he had not given up hope that the embargo would be retained. He put forward his "war debt bonus" proposal as one of the things that would be offered on the senate floor if it appeared that Mr. Roosevelt would win his fight to sell arms abroad.

Nye, who will stand along with leaders like Senator Borah (R) Idaho, in the fight against the embargo repeal, also protested against President Roosevelt's recent appeal to Republicans and Democrats alike to support his foreign policies.

Mayor Charles E. McGrath has prescribed the oath of office to all members of the paid fire department. Cloaked with this authority they may now break a lock on a state or federal building for the purpose of extinguishing a fire, city hall reports state.

Charles Colnot, city mechanic recently repaired for several hundred dollars a piece of fire equipment which, at first, was believed would cost $1100.

Almost all of the eligibles who have been given temporary positions as city police officers have been released from service, police who have permanent jobs having had their vacations.

The city dog-catcher was instructed today to capture all dogs running loose in North Beaver street.

Nelson Schmoey, cook, Philadelphia, who was employed in this city has been charged with attempted breaking and entering by Police Chief Ralph A. Criswell. It was reported by Patrolman Arthur Leslie.

RIB INJURIES NOT UNCOMMON WITH YOUNGSTERS

Fractured ribs seem to be a common injury this summer for I have encountered several cases among young children. I suppose it is an accident that can occur very easily in the rough and tumble of camp life. It is very easy for a child to fall in such a way as to inflict a painful injury to the ribs.

One child I saw fell out of a tree and broke a couple of ribs. Another got his when he was scuffling with a comrade and they both fell; another when he was hauled into a motor boat from the water with too much enthusiasm by his pals. As a result of such an accident, a bruise will appear almost immediately. The area over the bruise will be very tender, and pressing on this area will be of little help in determining whether or not one or more ribs are broken. In most cases there will be no fracture, even though the bruise is painful. The ribs are fairly well protected by muscles and fat. Even if the rib is cracked or broken, it is very difficult to say definitely without an X-ray.

The ribs are held in place by a series of ligaments and muscles. Even though a rib is broken, unless the ligaments are torn they will hold the broken end of the ribs in place. Only occasionally does a rib show gross evidence of the break. When it does, it is a very serious thing, for the broken, jagged end of the rib may pierce the lung and cause grave illness.

Most times, however, the doctor will find only a bruised area on the side of the chest, and the patient will complain a great deal when this area is pressed and also when he is asked to take a deep breath. If the doctor presses on the front of the chest, and the rib is broken, it will cause the broken ends to separate and give the patient a lot of pain.

If, on the other hand, the rib isn't broken, this pressing on the front of the chest should not cause any severe pain.

As long as there is no displacement of the broken rib, the treatment for the break is just the same as for a severe bruise. In both cases, however, the child will complain of a good deal of pain in breathing and so something should be done to relieve this discomfort.

The treatment most frequently used under these circumstances is to strap the chest with adhesive tape so that the ribs on the affected side will move as little as possible. In order to do this, the child is banded to the waist; if the patient is an older boy with some hair on his chest it would be wise to shave this off.

Several strips of adhesive about four inches wide are cut and starting at the back just beyond the spinal column on the unaffected side; the tape is swept around the injured side to beyond the mid-line, in front. The adhesive must be put on so tightly that the injured side of the chest cannot move. Then the child will breathe on one side of the chest more than the other and the injured ribs will get a chance to rest and heal. Properly strapped, a child need not stay in bed, but can carry on with his play.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 20.—The

Returning Congressmen Warn Of Inspired War Propaganda

America Must Keep Out Of War

Five Congressmen Arriving From Trip Abroad Tell Of Situation

WAR IS EUROPE'S BUSINESS, NOT OURS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Declaring the present conflict abroad is "Europe's business," five congressmen, including Hamilton Fish, of New York, arrived Tuesday afternoon on the liner President Harding and warned the American public against "inspired propaganda" designed to drag the United States into another World War.

They handed the press a three-paragraph signed statement in which they expressed their views. Those who signed it were Congressman Fish, Republican, of New York; Harold Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota; Thomas S. McMillan, Democrat, of South Carolina; Louis C. Rabat, Democrat, of Michigan; and Dewey Short, Republican, of Missouri.

Representative Fish expressed the opinion that congress would not repeal the present neutrality law.

Statement Made

The statement of the five congressmen read:

"During the last several weeks abroad as delegates to the meeting of the Interparliamentary Union held at Oslo, Norway, we have had the opportunity both prior to and following the conference to visit a number of the countries of western Europe and to observe at first hand the political, economic and social problems confronting them.

"It is our firm conviction, without regard to our party affiliations, that America must keep out of European entanglements of every character.

"Our country's experience during the World War, with its attendant sacrifices of her manhood and money, should remain constantly before every American as an object lesson of the futility of any effort on the part of our government to attempt in any manner to shape the destiny of Europe.

"The present conflict in Europe is Europe's business. Economic adjustments will be necessary but we are convinced that they can be made. America's policy must be one of strict neutrality.

"From our observations and contacts with many people abroad we feel it our duty, now to warn the American public of inspired propaganda, carefully and skillfully directed to mould sentiment in America to drag our country into another World War."

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

First aid is often the worst aid. What to do in an emergency for the injured persons?

It is better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing.

First aid is more a matter of common sense than skill.

Too many people lack both and may compound the injury.

Awkwardly moving an injured person may further injure him.

Moving a person with a broken back may result in paralysis.

There is usually hysteria and panic at an accident.

With good breathing and no profuse bleeding, rest the injured.

Keep him warm and dry where he lies.

World's Greatest Liners Side By Side, At Last

For the first time since they were built the two giant luxury liners, the Normandie and the Queen Mary are not only in the same port at the same time but are docked side by side in New York harbor, as the above photo shows. The French liner, Normandie, at left, above, and the British liner, Queen Mary, at right, operated on schedules which prevented the two craft from meeting.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Cobwebs are being brushed away in the cloistered Fifth avenue jewelry shops. One may now discover that the elegant salesman, with their striped trousers and morning coats, are not lay figures, nor are they any longer receding into the contemplation of the cosmos. There is a new flicker of awareness and enterprise in long solemn eyes.

U. S. Steel hits swings upward. There is volume, too, in the market, five-million-share days as well as an ascending curve and, even in the pale light of the autumnal equinox, that is what sends the ever-hopeful broker in quest of a bauble for his girl friend. Nothing very gaudy just yet. Perhaps a modern string of pearls or an emerald bracelet. Later on they'll break out the $100,000 knick-knacks. Or will they?

Waves from the Wall street beach are rippling into the far reaches of stagnant business. They promise to become breakers. The softly murmured "front"—never a shout in these later decorous years—is heard again in the big hotels. There is a new stir around the night spots—and some new night spots as well; nothing like that of the gold rush days, but still a quickened tempo, as the boogie-woogie piano player quickens his pace and the hoarse but always provocative saxophone rouses the dancers to new abandon.

"Coppering the bet" is a faro phrase. If you aren't quite so sure that the card that carries your wager will issue in the proper sequence from the little box, you shove out a little marker which says it won't. Wary old desert rats, who know much of sanded decks and the general hazards of the game are more given to thus discounting felicity than are the bucks young fellows, less familiar with such encounters.

Older and more cautious speculators are "coppering" their bets in this market spurge. For this and many other reasons seasoned old-timers think the market isn't going hog-wild this time. Even before this piece gets into print, there may be another story to tell. There are not only certain restraining factors of public psychology, new brakes and controls have been provided in the last ten years. The Federal Reserve board machinery is much more quickly and effectively workable.

Again, this new run-around is "sickled o'er with the pale cast of thought." Plunging in war babies isn't quite the merry sport it used to be. The babies are much more liable to get the croup than they were back in 1917.

But we are forever human. Passing the Forty-Third street bus terminal here in New York the other day, I heard a couple of bus drivers comparing notes on their flyers in war stocks. One begins to hear stories of the old "mud hens," the keepers of midtown actors' boarding houses, hanging around the tickers again. They say we never learn. Personally, I think we begin to suspect a lot, even if we don't really learn, but the process is slow and difficult.

Apropos of gambling, a friend of this writer, who was in the old-time mining camps for years, is rather skeptical about homo sapiens ever hesitating to take a chance—if there is any living around loose. He told me a story, to point up his idea.

"I was shooting craps," he said, "at Casey's big, gaudy joint in Goldfield. It was a dull night and

I had the big table to myself, shooting half dollars. I had marvelous luck and was feeding half dollars into my pockets for hours. I seemed to have a ton of them. I had on a pair of new, high-topped boots and one of them was hurting me. My leg seemed to be pulling me down. In the early morning hours I was just about breaking the bank.

The dealer sent for a substitute. In about five minutes, this newcomer, a cold, precise, businesslike looking chap, stood me on my head. I didn't know what had happened but all my available half dollars had just melted away.

"I staggered home across the malarial rock, dragging my right leg and cursing those ill-fitting boots. I let down the shelf bunk in my shack and flopped without undressing. I woke up at noon full of remorse and misery. I closed my eyes and swore by all the desert gods that I never would touch dice again. Then I cautiously assembled myself and started, painfully to get up. My right leg almost crashed through the floor. Then I savied. For hours I had been feeding half dollars through a hole in my pants pocket. I had a sackful. My first instinctive and 100 per cent human gesture was to look at my watch to see how long it would be before the game started again at Casey's. And I was there when it started."

At The Airport

Actual construction work on the new F. C. Wilson hangar has now been completed. The building is quite an imposing structure and is large enough to house about a dozen airplanes.

An addition to the new hangar at the airport now being built is a floodlight tower on the front roof ridge. When completed the tower will house a huge floodlight that will serve to light that portion of the field near the hangar.

Residents of the district are showing great interest in the airport this week and each day and evening finds many people at the field watching the activities of the pilots and students.

Local celebration of "Air Progress Week" is meeting with success from all angles according to reports from the port.

Neil McCray, of Erie, who is perhaps the most accomplished flyer in this part of the country, will be at the airport next Sunday in a Stinson 105. He met the local aerial caravan at Oil City last Sunday and promised a good show for the local people on Sunday.

Number of student flyers at the New Castle Airport is increasing daily as more and more people learn of the safety in flying and what an interesting sport it is.

Many of Gilbert Minnick's old-time friends have called at the port to see him since he landed here in the tri-motored ship last week. Gil flew out of the local field in 1930.

Claim Nazi Leaders Deposit Huge Fortunes Outside Of Germany

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Detailed documentary evidence that seven of the highest Nazi leaders beneath Adolf Hitler have prepared for war or revolution at home by depositing large fortunes abroad and by taking out huge foreign insurance policies was revealed today by representatives of one of the oldest and most famous institutions of its kind in the world.

Hitler alone among the highest Nazi chieftains has abroad no assets which could be discovered. Two years of expert investigation all over the world in almost every country on earth and among a score of banking institutions has established, however, that Goering, Hess, Goebbels, Von Ribbentrop, Ley, Himmler and Streicher all have deposited in foreign neutral countries cash investments and insurance totaling $34,873,500.

It may be recalled that according to Nazi law, it is a penitentiary or death penalty offense for any German citizen to possess undeclared foreign currency or other assets abroad.

It is notable that the seven Nazis named in this list include Hitler's own choice for his successor—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering—and for Goering's successor Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, as well as Heinrich Himmler, head of the secret police, Robert Ley, chief of the labor front and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, who is richest in foreign cash holdings, owning over four and a half million dollars in currency.

There is no doubt but that the whole report constitutes an unparalleled piece of investigation, involving not only incredible industry and travel all over the globe, but intimate contacts with banking institutions which could only be possessed by a central organization with worldwide connections such as conducted his piece of international political research.

It carries a conviction that will be difficult to shake. It has not yet been published in England, but in these dark days it may bring some satisfaction for the allies to learn that so many Nazi party chieftains seem to have taken it for granted that some day the time would come when they would be unable to stay in Germany any longer.

BRITAIN REJECTS ANY INTENDED PEACE GESTURES

a final verdict on the motives and consequences of this Russian action.

"For the unhappy victim of this cynical attack, the result has been a tragedy of the grimmest character."

Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky, a leading figure in the Anglo-Soviet "anti-aggression" pact negotiations a few weeks ago, was in the diplomatic gallery listening to Chamberlain's violent denunciation of his country's war move.

"The world," Chamberlain said, "has watched the vain struggle of the Polish nation against overwhelming odds with profound pity and sympathy."

"The world admires their valor, which even now refuses to admit defeat."

Obligations Not Forgotten

"If the British and French have been unable to avert defeat of the armies of Poland, they have assured her that they have not forgotten their obligations nor weakened their determination to carry on the struggle."

The prime minister lauded the British navy's anti-submarine campaign.

"Already six or seven enemy submarines have paid the full penalty," he said. "In some cases the crews have been captured."

"It is emphatically clear that Britain will be able to maintain essential supplies of war materials and food."

Chamberlain dismissed Hitler's Danzig speech in general with these words:

Did Not Seek War

"Great Britain did not seek this war. Her hopes were shattered by unprovoked and brutal aggression by Germany upon our Polish allies." Chamberlain branded as a "misstatement" Hitler's charge that France had accepted and Britain rejected an Italian offer of mediation.

The British government, he said, is publishing a new white paper showing "the true course of events to enable public opinion to form a final judgment."

The prime minister ridiculed Hitler's claim that he was conducting the war on humane lines. "Germany's bombing of open towns and machine-gunning of refugees has shocked the world," he said.

French troops have secured valuable strategic and technical objectives on the western front and are holding them "in the face of increasingly severe German resistance," Chamberlain said.

Immense Preparations

"Immense British and French preparations to build up our air and land forces are continuing," he said. "No country without aggressive intentions can be as quick off the mark as one that has kept only one set purpose."

"U-boats are being continuously and relentlessly attacked whenever they disclose themselves."

A total of 139 lives, including those of British and neutrals, have been lost as a result of submarine warfare in addition to the more than 500 sailors and officers killed in the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous, Chamberlain said.

An additional 44 are missing. Chamberlain urged all of England to patience.

"There is no sacrifice from which we will shrink and no operation that we will not undertake," he said, "provided we are convinced that it will make an appropriate contribution to victory."

"But we will not rush into adventures offering little prospect of success, calculated to impair our resources or postpone ultimate victory. That road leads to disaster."

Reception and Tea

Plans are completed for a reception and tea to be given in the Rose avenue school, Thursday afternoon, by the Parent Teachers Association, from 3:30 until 4:30 o'clock.

The occasion will be a medium of welcoming new members of the organization, to become better acquainted with their associates. Mrs. Josephine Thompson, is in charge.

Manufacturers Do Not Want War, Is Expressed Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The National Association of Manufacturers today was joined with other organizations seeking to keep America free from the European war.

Howard Conoley, president, issued a statement warning that war profits no one, branding as "absurd" any attitude that war for America is inevitable; pledging its members against war profiteering, and urging a "public will to peace."

"American industry hates war," Conoley said.

"War destroys lives. War wrecks homes. Economic chaos and years of crushing depression are its inevitable aftermath. It imperils representative democracy. Free institutions are among its early victims. Ultimately no one can escape the ruin of war."

"American industry wants peace. Peace is the life blood of progress. Peace must be the national objective."

"The United States can stay out of war."

"Emotionalism can betray us into war."

"A public will to peace, coupled with wise public policies and affirmative action to this end by our government, will keep us out of war."

FRENCH REPULSE COUNTER ATTACK ON SAAR FRONT

ed to destroy Poland, and this can be accepted as but one step in his attempt to dominate Europe.

"Hitler attempts to be astonished that France and Britain are making war on him, instead of on the German people. But France and Britain will not allow the Hitler dictatorship to condemn the world to slavery and to the destruction of liberty."

Heavy Losses By Germans

Seasoned troops, experienced in fighting in Poland, were reported to be the backbone of German attacks on the Saar front. These assaults were described as the most important seen so far on the western lines—but the French said they were without result.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans, according to the French.

Voters Shock Tammany Hall

Insurgents Show Unexpected Strength And Win From Four To Six Places

TAMMANY CHAIRMAN KENNEALLY BEATEN

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Tammany Hall was shocked today by unexpected strength shown by insurgent drives in a half dozen assembly districts in yesterday's primary election, one of the quietest in years.

At least four and perhaps six new leaders will take their places on the executive committee, virtually complete unofficial returns showed.

The bi-partisan ticket of Magistrate Jacob Gould Schurman, Jr., and John A. Mullen, the respective Republican and Democratic designees for general sessions judge, was apparently successful. Judge Jonah B. Goldstein, the incumbent, was defeated for the Democratic nomination.

Kenneally Defeat

Kenneth F. Simpson, New York county Republican chairman and national committeeman, routed a conservative element which sought to wrest control from him. Returns from the 15th assembly district showed he had captured 324 out of 326 committeemen.

The greatest Tammany upset was the overwhelming defeat administered to William P. Kenneally, leader of the 12th assembly district and chairman of the powerful Tammany executive committee, by Rep. James H. Fay. Backed by Washington as when he successfully "purged" Rep. John J. O'Connor, Fay rolled up impressive majorities over the powerful Tammany leader.

The other old-line Tammany leader defeated was Andrew J. Keating, who was swamped by Assemblyman William J. Sheldrick in the 13th A. D. Dr. Paul Sarubbi won over Tammanyite Dr. Paul Santangelo in the 1st A. D.

The reason is that the list of cases to be tried will be cleaned up this week. Sheriff M. M. Ingham was directed to notify jurors called, that they need not appear.

Police, Bandits In Gun Battle

One Policeman Wounded And One Bandit Captured In Wheeling Gun Fight

(International News Service)

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 20.—A pitched battle in a service station early today between three bandits and four police officers resulted in the wounding of one of the officers and the capture of one of the bandits, authorities reported.

Detective Albert Megale was shot in the shoulder after he and three other officers opened fire on the bandits. Police said they had been tipped the service station was to be held up and had lain in wait for the gunmen.

The captured man was identified as Thurman McCarty, 27, an ex-convict. The other two bandits escaped. Detective Megale is expected to recover, hospital attaches reported.

Police said the bandits pried open a door at the service station and backed their car inside. As they were about to step from the car, authorities reported, the gunmen's flashlights played on the police and the battle followed.

Britain Strives To Keep Commerce Moving Over Sea

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Striving to keep its vital sea commerce moving across the submarine-infested Atlantic, the British government has established an agency to insure cargoes at rates far lower than those offered by standard underwriters, it was learned today.

Ships of all nationalities carrying cargo from United States to British ports avail themselves of war risk insurance at 2 per cent or $2 per $100 of cargo. It was understood similar rates were being offered by the British government for west-bound cargoes.

The present rate of United States underwriters for shipments to British ports is $2.50 per $100 in United States vessels; $5 per $100 on neutral vessels except Italian, and $7.50 per $100 on British ships.

FRANCE REJECTS HITLER PEACE

approved a declaration that France remains determined to fight until Hitlerism is crushed.

Reaffirms Solidarity

The declaration likewise reaffirmed French solidarity with Great Britain in political as well as military fields. At the moment, the joint high command of both nations is engaged chiefly mapping plans to thrust back any German stroke through Belgium, and in Belgium's own fortifications and determination France has utmost faith.

The communiqué issued after the council meeting said: "Premier Edouard Daladier furnished a fully documented review of both the military and diplomatic situation."

"The ministerial council serves final notice to the world that no peace offer from Germany will be entertained by France and Great Britain, who are continuing the war to win irrespective of the partition of Poland."

"The council paid homage to the heroism of Poland, which will find in a common victory, just reparation of its rights."

"The council approved all military, economic and financial measures destined to continue the war until final victory is achieved. The council reaffirmed the solidarity of France and Britain which every day is becoming more binding."

Northwestern And Michigan Seem Best In Big Ten Loop

Northwestern Will Unwrap Sensational Bill DeCorre—vantage For Inspection This Fall

Michigan Has Flock Of Good Juniors From Last Year, Ohio State May Be Tough

By BILL COLLINS
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The crying towels were issued along with equipment to the young men who will do or die on mid-western football fields beginning Sept. 30, and already Coach Bernie Bierman has worn to a frazzle three whistle cords as he dismally prepares to defend Minnesota's western conference title.

Disregarding the tragic words from the typewriters of the Big Ten's P. A., there is little reason to believe that the conference picture this fall will differ materially from previous campaigns.

Michigan, with a host of brilliant juniors who as sophomores almost carved the Wolverines a share of the title last fall, and Northwestern, with plenty of talent hiding under the highly publicized Bill DeCorre-vent's bushel, appear to be the chief contenders for Minnesota's place in the western sun.

Ohio State and Purdue look like the troublemakers and first division clubs, Wisconsin the dark horse, and Illinois and Indiana the teams with one upset under their belts. Iowa, frankly, is more interested in developing a new system under a new coach—Dr. Eddie Anderson who comes from Holy Cross. Chicago is still the Chicago of last year and the year before.

Fritz Crisler's most pressing problem at Michigan is development of a line to protect his three backfield stars—Forest Evashevski, blocking quarterback, Tom Harmon who averaged more than five yards for each of his 77 ball-toting jaunts last autumn, and Paul Kromer.

At Minneapolis, Bierman seems well pleased with the material on hand for the coming campaign. Bill DeCorre, who two years ago set a national high school scoring record, has monopolized the pre-season speculation on Northwestern's campus.

Purdue's offense will be built around Jack Brown, who can run, kick, and pass with either hand. Francis Schmidt's blast last week against Proselyting—leads one to suspect Ohio State will come up with a first class crop of homegrown footballers this fall. Either Prof. Schmidt is set to go to town, or is setting up an early alibi.

Wisconsin Has Vets

Harry Stuhldreher has a team of veterans at Wisconsin, a team with a fighting spirit sadly lacking before Stuhldreher's advent on the Badger class.

Indiana, Illinois and Iowa are not expected to get out of the so-so class.

Nothing is expected of Chicago except that it will play out its scheduled Maroons have nine letter-men back, but the entire squad numbers only 35, and first class reserves are a vital necessity in Big Ten football.

Notre Dame, beyond the precincts of the Big Ten, has a veteran team, which, despite the usual suicide schedule, should do as well as last season only Southern California was able to triumph over the Irish.

East High May Surprise Locals Here On Friday

Youngstown East Has Strong Team, Forward Passes Will Fill Air

BRIDENBAUGH SET ON STARTING LINEUP

Youngstown East high may hand the New Castle "Red Hurricane" a surprise here Friday night under the lights at Taggart stadium. The kickoff at 8 o'clock will find two fine high school football machines facing each other. New Castle has one win in the bag. East high will be playing its first game Friday.

Head Coach Philip H. Bridenbaugh will no doubt start the same eleven men that began the Butler high game, that is barring injuries to any of his regulars during the week's drills.

Franklin High Outlook Fair

None Of Regulars From Last Year Left For 1939 Team, Open Up At Sharpville

TIED FOR TITLE WITH WASHINGTON

The football outlook at Ben Franklin Junior high this year can be termed only fair, it is revealed. There are no regulars left from the 1938 team. An entirely new team will have to be built by Coaches Gillaspie, Wallace and Binder.

The Franklin high team has been working out for the past two weeks and will open the 1939 season on Friday, September 29, at Sharpville high.

The squad this year consists of the following:

Ends—Robinson, Zubkowsky, Harris, Demard and Small.
Tackles—Sisco, Hawkey, Abraham, Gianotti, Roussos and Parrillo.
Guards—Sanfilippo, Canami, Milone, Davis, Klamut and Pettett.
Centers—J. Josephs, Powell, Audino and Ciccone.
Quarters—DeMarco, Coloa, Day and Reynolds.
Half—Paise, Rozzi, DiAugustine, Van Dusen, Clemens and Keys.
Fullbacks—Tom Josephs and Barletto.

The student managers are Della-verson and Pianato.

The first home game will be played at Taggart Stadium on the afternoon of October 5th with Campbell Memorial Junior high furnishing the opposition. All home games will be at the stadium and will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Walt Raskowski Gets Pitt Job As Guard Coach

"New Castle boy makes good" is the caption that should go on this story about Coach Charley Bowser naming Walter Raskowski, former New Castle high star guard, as an assistant coach of the Pitt Panthers this year. Raskowski will be a guard coach.

The job belonged to Albin Lesoon (Louzowski), but he resigned to coach a high school team. Raskowski played guard at Pitt for two years and was made over into a tackle last year, but suffered an injury midway in the season and could not break back into the lineup. His place was taken by Ted Konefsky who will be a regular this year.

Raskowski is one of the best football men that Coach Phil Bridenbaugh ever turned out. Raskowski finished his college career last June.

Beaver Falls Changes Date Of Grid Game

Sports World Ramblings

Local sport bits: Look for the Wash-bash bears, one of the toughest grid-iron aggregations in the district, to join the proposed Beaver Valley loop.

"Around" the main stem, "Red Hurricane" followers are praising Sammy Ciazza. New Castle's right half. The former Ben Franklin flash is a member of the "10 second gang" . . . On Thursday, September 28, in the Highland U. P. church, the First Presbyterians, champs of the Church Golf League, will be honored at a banquet. During the proceedings, they will receive a trophy . . .

World series prelude: If the Yanks meet the Reds in the fall classic, the four time champs will not trot onto the field with the same lopsided edge of past series. Aside from hitting, there isn't too much to choose between the two teams, according to figures. At the plate, the Yanks hold a 288 to 275 margin. In fielding, both aggregations lead their loop, the Yanks with a .979 mark, and Cincys with a .977 figure . . .

Pitching favors Cincy: Odd as it may seem, the junior loopers will have an edge in pitching. The way Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters are performing, it's impossible for anyone to match them. Ruffing, Donald, Gomez, Pearson and Hadley, on the other hand, have lost that early season zip. Boiled down, figures show that the coming blue ribbon event may be the best in years with a few surprises in store for the customers . . .

A pinch of this and that: Any day now, Pitt is expected to make a formal announcement that it is a Big Ten member . . . Most of the scribes are carrying the torch for Southern California . . . The Boston Bees have recorded 164 two ply killings to date, more than any other club in baseball, which is something.

Fannins Capture Class B Crown By 6 To 3 Win

Defeat Clowns At Gaston Park Field In Five-Inning Game On Tuesday Night

The Fannins are the Class B champions of softball here in New Castle for the 1939 season, having won the crown last night at Gaston Park field, 6 to 3, over the Cozy Clowns in the deciding game of the series.

A crowd of over 1,000 fans saw the game. Eddie Cowden did the Fannin hurling and turned in a three-hit performance. Greer and Eckles hit homers to be the feature hitters. Fazzone's triple and double were responsible for four of the Fannin runs. Abraham hit a homer for the Clowns. The losing pitcher was Smith. The game had to be called by darkness at the end of the fifth inning.

Theopolls was the best fielder in the game last night, making a couple of sensational catches of hard hit balls. The Fannins have an enviable record this year, scoring 45 wins, tying four and losing but nine games. Frank Fannin is the manager and sponsor of the team.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Cardinals Cut Lead Of Reds

Defeat Brooklyn Dodgers As Reds Slip Around And Let Phillies Win 13 To 1

PIRATES HAND BOSTON JOLT

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Yanks are keeping a worried and watchful eye on the daily proceedings in the National league.

Don't think for a moment that the winners of four straight American league pennants are worried because they doubt their ability to annex their fourth straight world series.

On no. On the contrary, they have every confidence in their ability to knock over the eventual National league entry, be that entry Reds or Cardinals. Yesterday the Phils whipped the Reds, 13 to 1, their worst defeat of the year.

But the Yanks are deeply concerned because they feel the Reds and Cards are gradually killing off interest in the world series. Any decrease in fan interest means less gate receipts, and less gate receipts hit the Yanks right where it is most painful.

Lead Is Cut

The Reds saw their lead cut to 2 1/2 games as the Cardinals came through with a 6-1 decision over the lashing Dodgers.

The Cubs, with that man Hank Leiber doing his stuff again, trimmed the Giants, 3-2, and the Pirates took the Bees over, 5-3.

The Yanks turned in their 100th victory by beating the White Sox, 3-2, and Joe McCarthy found that he has another series starter in Hildebrand, if Joe needs him.

In the last three pennant winning years the Yanks have won 102, 102 and 99, and now seem sure to add more than 102 this year.

The Red Sox topped the Browns, 3-2; the Senators came through in the ninth to beat the Indians, 10-3, and the Tigers, with Greenberg hitting his 30th homer, downed the A's, 8-4.

Six-Man Football Proving Popular

More Of Smaller Schools Are Adopting Game In Pennsylvania

By TOM R. BRISLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

HARRISBURG, Sept. 20.—Six-man football, already a part of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association's program, may be extended throughout the state within the next year, it was indicated today.

Edmund C. Wicht, executive secretary of the P. I. A. A., revealed that the sport, which originated in Nebraska, has gripped northern Pennsylvania and that considerable interest was being manifested by smaller high schools in other sections of the state.

Wicht said that the sport thus far was catching hold chiefly in smaller high schools lacking either material or money for the promotion of 11-man grid teams.

Co-Captains Are Named For Westminster Team

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Sept. 20.—Co-captains Julius Laposki, New Brighton senior, and Dale Youkers, Butler senior, were named today to pilot the 1939 Westminster Titan gridders through the season.

Laposki, who worked at the quarter post last season, is being given a trial at fullback this year. The varsity back passes well, kicks accurately, and is an excellent blocker. A business administration major, Laposki is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Youkers, also a business administration major and a Sigma Phi Epsilon member, has worked at guard for the past three years, but will probably be shifted to center this year following the graduation of Washabaugh's two senior centers last year, Brethole and Throup.

The two grid captains along with Mel Miller, basketball co-captain, are known as the "Three Musketeers" on the campus, having lived together since entering Westminster as freshmen three years ago.

From reports of local fishermen the fireside stories that will be told this winter are going to be whoppers. There is nothing that makes a fisherman more upset than to meet another fisherman with longer arms. How about it boys. 11-17

It's smart to save time... no matter if you have all the time in the world... you will still want to find devices to save time. We offer the classified ad page daily and when you use it... then only will you realize the time you save. Try it today. 11-17

Wherever men congregate... in a hotel lobby, on a commuters train, on church steps, at luncheon tables, in the bar, shoe shine parlors or what have you the question and argument of the electric razor comes to task. I use this kind or I use that... does it shave closer than the safety razor or the straight edge. How long did it take to get used to running the blade time. And just when we have all questions about settled a new company brings out a double edge affair. One edge cuts the whiskers and the second edge checks the first and then their is a company that is bringing one that burns the whiskers off... and to keep the face from getting burnt a small fan blows over the surface of the face... so you see this is really a large question among us men. Just how should we shave? 11-17

Quite a few mean looks have been cast our way since the day that we said men should take a little interest in cooking. The mean looks haven't been from men should go into the kitchen every day and help... by no means... that is carrying things too far... they're time and a place for everything... we are willing to say that a great majority of the men in New Castle can't go to the kitchen and without hunting, find the olive oil, vinegar and Italian Koses (garlic). Now truthfully, how many can? Who pays the bills in your home?... but that's another story and let's forget it now. 11-17

Market Today Is Stronger

Market Prices Soar 1 To 4 Points Today, In Active Trading

By LESLIE GOULD

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The stock market today continued the new boom touched off by Hitler's Danzig speech with gains of one to four points being added to Tuesday's spectacular rally, and the major portion of these being retained despite light profit-taking.

Trading was extremely active at the opening, when the ticker ran three minutes late as blocks running to 10,000 shares changed hands. The pace slowed later as best levels were shaded.

Steels, chemicals, coppers and other "war" shares again led the upswing. It was a widespread advance, however, with virtually all sections participating to some extent.

U. S. Steel held about two points higher in the face of realizing Bethlehem's peak gain was about three points but it retreated to its opening level. Other steels were up a point or more.

Allied Chemical spurted four points, while DuPont rose about half as much. Top gains in aviation exceeded two points. Coppers advanced more than a point, with International Nickel up almost three at one time.

In rails N. Y. Central increased its gain to a point before meeting profit-taking. Other carrier shares advanced fractions to more than a point.

Western Union jumped almost two points to a new 1939 high. General Motors and Chrysler each were up more than a point, as were Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Pullman and U. S. Gypsum.

Richard Metzger of Lancaster was best man, and the ushers were Charles Flynn and John Cochran, both of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Blandford, the bridegroom's mother, wore gray blue and the bride's mother was dressed in sapphire blue, with matching hat.

In addition to the parents of the bridegroom, the out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Worcester Jr. of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Worcester of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. Charles M. Mason and Ridgely Mason of Buffalo, N. Y.; Jeanne Ann Ritchie of Ravenwood, W. Va.; Margaret Myers of North Canton, O., and Charles Chaney of Washington, D. C.

County commissioners are conferring with the state highway department relative to the erection of a bridge over a run on the West Pittsburgh road, near the Pennsylvania power plant. It is claimed that the bridge will be too expensive for the township to build. The present bridge is 24 feet wide, and a little wider bridge is desired. The span is also 24 feet.

The commissioners visited Harrisburg in connection with the improvement and were asked to have plans prepared, with an estimate of the cost.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace, James R. Chaney of Bessemer, has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of M. Dale Andrews against Frank and Eldora Eckman. The case is the outgrowth of a civil suit for labor and materials. Judgment was rendered by the justice for $293.04.

In the case of the commonwealth against Theresa Love, convicted of aggravated assault and battery, Judge W. Walter Braham, has handed down an opinion in which a motion for a new trial is refused. The defendant and Mrs. Nellie Yara were neighbors. They got into an argument and Mrs. Love threw a stone, striking Mrs. Yara. It was claimed in the application for a new trial that no grievous bodily harm was inflicted by the stone. Judge Braham, in his opinion, says there is some doubt as to the amount of injury, but he can take care of the matter in passing sentence.

Judge W. Walter Braham has handed down an opinion in which a new trial is refused in the case of the commonwealth against Benjamin T. Dominick, Joseph Bennett and Louis DeLurio, charged with assault and battery with intent to rob Paul Parzleri. Dominick had already pleaded guilty in the case, but Bennett and DeLurio stood trial and were found guilty. The new trial was asked on the grounds that there was not sufficient evidence against DeLurio.

Sheriff M. M. Ingham has posted in the prothonotary's office a schedule of distribution of the proceeds of recent sales of real estate. If there is no objection raised within ten days the distributions will become absolute.

Under the will of the late Robert Renwick Braham of New Wilmington, which has been probated in the register and recorder's office, all the property of decedent is left to his wife, Olive Louisa (Wilkin) Braham. William Walter Braham is named as executor.

Mrs. George McKenzie and John Sickafuse, who have been appointed delinquent tax collectors for the city and county, respectively, are off to a good start with $500, which had been paid to the treasurer's office to hold until the tax collectors were appointed.
